13

ABSTRACT

The client loads an application class through a gateway server that preloades and preresolves a class, creates a binary representation of new portions of the preloaded and preresolved class, and sends only the new portion to the client.

5